The APEC Secretariat is seeking proposals for the APEC Companies’ Best Practices on Long-term Foreign Direct Investment within APEC Economies (FDI location: Malaysia).

1. Background

As APEC Peru 2024 puts emphasis on “Trade and investment for inclusive and interconnected growth”, nurturing investment is key for APEC economies to grow.

This research aims to distill the best practices of APEC’s private companies regarding their Foreign Direct Investment (FDI) projects within APEC member economies. Previous APEC research initiatives on FDI have attempted to establish principles of FDIs aimed at making these investments mutually beneficial for host and investing economies. Building upon past APEC initiatives, this study aims to examine how these principles have been utilized in real-world, long-term FDI projects.

2. Objectives of the Project

In the 2023 Golden Gate Declaration at San Francisco, APEC Leaders reaffirmed their determination to delivering a free, open, fair, non-discriminatory, transparent, inclusive, and predictable trade and investment environment. With the declaration as its core, Peru has set “Trade and investment for inclusive and interconnected growth” one of its three priorities as the host economy for APEC 2024.

According to a report issued by the APEC Policy Support Unit (PSU) in 2022, FDI leads APEC economies to participate in global value chains (GVCs), which has provided new ways for developing economies to achieve industrialization and economic upgrading. The APEC Non-Binding Investments Principles (NBIPs), first adopted in 1994 (then revised in 2011), reaffirmed the importance of investment in economic development, job creation, and the flow of technology in the APEC region. APEC continues its work to encourage FDI by adopting the APEC Investment Facilitation Action Plan (IFAP) in 2008. Ongoing activities of following up with the specific pillars of IFAP illustrate the importance of investment facilitation for increasing FDIs.

It is important for APEC to encourage its economies to adopt policies that attract FDIs. In addition to the demand-side approach, this research provides viewpoints from the supply side, as there has been little past research to review how NBIPs and other relevant initiatives have been utilized by investing companies. By distilling the best practices from individual FDI projects that have thrived for decades, both potential investing companies and the recipients of FDIs can gain insights into the productive approaches employed by successful companies continuing FDIs over the years in a certain place.

This research will gather the best FDI practices among APEC economies by taking a deep dive into a few actual long-term FDI projects. This will involve conducting field studies and interviews with key stakeholders from both investing corporations and local communities. The lessons derived from this research will provide policy implications for host economies and serve as a model case for companies undertaking FDI in the future.

3. Scope of Services

3.1 Description of Services

Development of Case Studies

The Contractor is tasked with developing case studies based on the pre-selected FDI projects. The case studies should highlight the following three (3) key elements:

a) Continuity: Having a long-term track record of investment at a particular site even after experiencing economic and social crisis.

b) Relationship: Building and maintaining good relationship between the investing company and local communities.

c) Human Resource Development: Creating local jobs and supporting the development of the local workforce to facilitate the upgrading of the local industry.
To develop insightful case studies, the Contractor should conduct field research in the locations where successful FDI projects are situated. This research should include interviews with key stakeholders, such as corporate officials responsible for local community relations and representatives from the host economies. By gathering information directly from these sources, the Contractor can identify the factors that have contributed to the long-term success of these FDI projects.

The content of the individual case study should include and highlight, at a minimum, the following elements:

a) Case assessment: Explain how a particular FDI project demonstrates each criterion (Continuity, Relationship, Human Resource Development).

b) Results of interviews and field study: Mention the stakeholders being interviewed (e.g., a particular FDI project’s employees, government officials, local academics) and the key themes that emerged from the field study and interviews.

c) Good practices by the investing company: Provide concrete examples and the positive outcomes these practices have produced for both the company and the local community.

d) Good practices by the local communities (including local/domestic government): Provide concrete examples and the positive outcomes for the business environment.

e) Challenges faced by companies, communities and government: Provide specific examples (e.g., challenges with human resources issues, managing social impact, etc.).

f) Key takeaways and outlook: Implications, lessons and forward-looking perspectives that can be learned.

APEC representatives will support the appointed Contractor with site visits and interviews/meetings with the pre-selected firms and local stakeholders in the FDI locations. However, the Contractor is expected to demonstrate established business networks within the FDI locations. To ensure the efficient completion of the research objectives, the Contractor may supplement these in-person interactions with virtual meetings or other appropriate methods. Please note that any travel-related expenses incurred during site visits and interviews/meetings will be the responsibility of the appointed Contractor and are included within the awarded contract amount.

For this RFP (IEG5A), the FDI location will be Malaysia, involving two (2) Multinational Companies that operate in the chemical-manufacturing and food industries, respectively. Hence, the appointed Contractor is expected to deliver a total of two (2) separate case studies.

Participation in IEG Workshop

The appointed consultant is expected to attend the APEC Investment Experts’ Group (IEG) workshop in 2025 to present and discuss the key findings from the case studies to IEG members. The key findings should include the lessons learned and policy recommendations applicable to APEC’s vision and mission, in particular the APEC Putrajaya Vision 2040 and the Aotearoa Plan of Action. International travel expenses to Korea for attending the workshop will be funded separately based on economy class airfare and a UN per diem rate (on a reimbursable basis).

Development of Final Report

The appointed Contractor is expected to submit a final comprehensive report with useful insights and policy implications to boost FDI that is welcomed and rooted in host economies of APEC based on the site visits, the interviews/meetings, and the workshop.

A suggested tentative outline of the final report is provided below.

I. Introduction: State background of this research
   a. Purpose of the project and structure of the report
   b. Past APEC initiatives
   c. Literature review (covering existing studies on similar topics)
   d. Link with the APEC Putrajaya Vision and the Aotearoa Plan of Action

II. Conceptual approach and overview of selected case studies
   a. Introducing industry creation FDI that meet the three (3) criteria (Continuity, Relationship, and Human Resource Development): Define long-term FDI and its key characteristics, such as a long-term investment horizon, focus on human resources issues, and commitment to social responsibility.
   b. Case study’s overview: Brief introduction of the individual case studies.

III. Description and key findings of individual case studies (as described above)
IV. Recommendations
   a. Provide positive implications of long-term FDI to industry creation in the home economies and the APEC region as a whole.
   b. Propose actionable recommendations for the following stakeholders:
      i. APEC member economies: Recommend policies and initiatives that can create an attractive environment for long-term FDI that fosters industry creation.
      ii. Companies undertaking FDI: Provide practical recommendations for companies to develop and implement long-term FDI strategies that benefit both the investing company and the host economy.

V. Conclusion
   a. State the significance of the research and its contribution to the understanding of long-term FDI in APEC economies.
   b. Emphasize the positive implications of successful long-term FDI practices for industry creation, economic growth, and regional economic integration within APEC economies.
   c. Conclude on a forward-looking note, suggesting areas for further research or initiatives to promote long-term FDI in the APEC region that supports the APEC Putrajaya Vision and the Aotearoa Plan of Action.
