The Services

The APEC Secretariat is seeking proposals for Cycle of Workshops to Strengthen Fire Prevention Capacities in Wildland-Urban Interface (WUI)

1. Background

The global cost of wildfires increases every year. Using world GDP predictions for the year 2050, the report “Cost of Carbon project 2014. Flammable Planet: Forest Fires and the Social Cost of Carbon” estimates that the global damages from forest fires induced by climate change will be around $50 to $300 billion annually. The Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations (FAO) has stated that between 3% and 4% of the earth's land surface is burned annually. APEC economies are particularly affected by this threat, as devastating wildfires have consumed millions of hectares in recent years, destroyed miles of homes and critical public and private infrastructure, claiming hundreds of human lives. Such was the case during the wildfire seasons in Australia 2019-2020, Chile 2014, Philippines 2018, New Zealand 2020, Russia 2019, United States 2020 and Vietnam 2019, among others.

The increase in wildfires generates serious environmental damage, economic and human losses for APEC economies, exacerbated by the growth of wildland urban interface (WUI) areas in economies such as Australia, Chile, Indonesia, New Zealand, Philippines, Russia, USA, Vietnam and others. Since evidence indicates that human intervention is the main cause of wildfires, it is essential to prepare the population, strengthen public-private strategies and upgrade technical knowledge of DRR institutions.

This project seeks to contribute to the capacity building of APEC economies in fire management in WUI areas, by making available techniques and strategies focused on generating a culture of prevention, with the purpose of reducing territorial vulnerability and exposure to risk. This project will develop a cycle of training workshops as instances of cooperation between APEC economies oriented to the co-construction of a guide of good preventive practices for the community and a guide of good institutional practices oriented to the incumbent organizations, to be disseminated among member economies along with a Policy Brief.

2. Objectives of the project

The project's objective is to enhance member economies capacities for wildfire management in WUI and strengthen APEC capacities in DRR specifically in fire management in WUI, in order to consolidate a culture of prevention and improve the preparation of economies, furthering the available knowledge, expanding the available toolkit for risk managers and promoting public-private strategies, as well as a community oriented techniques, through a series of workshops that will cover prevention and wildfire risk in WUI; tools, techniques and strategies; international good practices; climate change; and preventive forestry.

The project will generate successful experiences and best practices exchange among member economies, which will materialize in a guide of good preventive practices at the community level and a guide of good institutional practices aimed at incumbent organizations, and a policy brief.

The primary objectives of this project are to:

- Identify the current knowledge gap and existing practices regarding risk management and forest fire prevention in the Urban Forest Interface
- Facilitate the exchange of experiences, best policies, practices and tools among APEC economies to strengthen fire prevention in WUI and promote collaboration.
- Use the knowledge available to recognize and highlight best practices employed within the APEC region that can improve performance of the economies front of the wildfires in WUI.
- Develop a Survey Report based on research of relevant materials, including previous EPWG projects and policies and programs in APEC economies; and conduct a survey of EPWG members and others.
- Develop a Policy Brief, which consists of policy recommendations to support the prevention and management of fires in WUI and support decision-making.

- Develop good practice Guides for risk management in WUI to reduce territorial vulnerability and exposure to wildfire risk and will encourage APEC economies to adopt a preventive and proactive approach rather than a reactive attitude to disasters. The Guides shall include both good practices on preventive policies for government institutions and community preventive practices.

3. Scope of Services
